

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A wiring board includes a substrate, an interconnect layer formed of a plurality of layers formed over the substrate, and a plurality of electrodes formed to overlap the interconnect layer. An interconnecting pattern positioned in one of the plurality of layers forming the interconnect layer has at least three interconnecting lines under each of the electrodes, extending parallel to each other at the same intervals.